RUFUS MERRILL.

HERE are five children at school. One is reciting his lesson.

Look here, my daughter;
what does this picture mean?
O, sir! it is to show how a dog can draw a little girl.

The good boy going to school.

GOING TO SCHOOL.

I AM a little boy ;
I love to go to school ;
I am hardly three feet high,
And only four years old.

I love my school-mates all ;
I love my teachers, too ;
And though I am so very small,
I love the right to do.

Come, good boys and girls,
with me,
To the school I love so well ;
And in season you shall see How nicely I can read and spell.

I LOVE to see the lambs at play;
They hop so spry and seem so
gay;
They nip the grass, and then
are seen
To chase their playmates round
the green.

THE OWL.

OF all the strange birds
That ever I did see,
The owl is the drollest,
By all odds, to me.
For all the day long
He sits on a tree,
And when the night comes
Then away flies he.

O, SEE the Trainers! They are going to muster. Some soldiers ride on horses, and some of them walk. Those in the picture are called cavalry.
